Obituary.

EX-SENATOR RANDOLPH.

Ex-Senator Theodore F. Randolph died Wednesday morning at his home in Morristown, N. J., from a sudden attack of disease of the heart, to which he is said to have been subject for some years. He was the son of James F. Randolph, and was born at New Brunswick, N. J., on June 24, 1836. His education was received at Rutgers Grammar School. An equally important part of his training was obtained in the office of The Freeman, a paper owned and edited by the elder Randolph after his retirement from Congress.

In 1859 he was sent to the Assembly by the American, or Know-Nothing, party, and was elected by the Democracy to the State Senate in 1862. In 1868 he was elected Governor of New Jersey by the Democrats, and served until 1872. It was through his influence that the Legislature was prevailed upon to repeal what was known as the "Camden and Amboy Monopoly Tax," and to pass a general railroad law. He was instrumental in improving the prison system of the State, and was the first to put in form the plan of a State lunatic asylum.

In 1874 Mr. Randolph was elected to the United States Senate, succeeding John P. Stockton.

Since the close of his term in the United States Senate, Mr. Randolph had lived quietly at his home in Morristown.

Young Men and What They Have Done. Lafayette was a major-general in the American army at the age of eighteen; was but twenty when he was wounded at Brandywine; but twenty-two when he raised supplies for the army, on his own credit, at Baltimore; and but thirty-three when raised to the office of Commander-in-Chief of the National Guards of France.

William Pitt, the first Earl of Chatham, was but twenty-seven years of age when, as a member of Parliament, he waged the war of a giant against the corruptions of Sir Robert Walpole. The younger Pitt was scarcely twenty years of age when, with masterly power, he grappled with the veterans of Parliament, in favor of America. At twenty-two he was called to the high and responsible trust of Chancellor of the Exchequer. It was at that age when he came forth in his might on the affairs of the East Indies. At twenty-nine, during the first insurrection of George III, he rallied around the Prince of Wales.

George Washington was only twenty-seven years of age when he covered the retreat of the British troops at Braddock's defeat; and the same year he was appointed Commander-in-Chief of all the Virginia forces.

General Joseph Warren was only twenty-nine years of age when, in defiance of the British soldiers stationed at the door of the church, he pronounced the celebrated oration that aroused the spirit of liberty and patriotism that terminated in the achievement of independence. At thirty-four he gloriously fell, gallantly fighting in the cause of freedom on Bunker Hill.

Alexander Hamilton was a lieutenant-colonel in the army of the American Revolution, and aide-de-camp to General Washington, at the age of twenty. At twenty-five he was a member of Congress from New York; and at thirty he was one of the members of the Convention that formed the Constitution of the United States; at thirty-one he was member of the New York Convention, and author of the work entitled the Federalist; at thirty-two he was Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

Thomas Haywood, of South Carolina, was but thirty years of age when he signed the glorious record of the nation's birth—the Declaration of Independence. Elbridge Gerry, of Massachusetts, Benjamin Rush and James Wilson, of Pennsylvania, were but thirty years of age; Matthew Thornton, of New Hampshire, Thomas Jefferson, of Virginia, Arthur Middleton, of South Carolina, and Thomas Stone, of Maryland, thirty-three; and William Hooper, of North Carolina, but thirty-four.

John Jay, at twenty-nine years old, was a member of the Revolutionary Congress, being associated with Lee and Livingston, on the committee for drafting an address to the people of Great Britain, and drew up that paper himself, which was considered one of the most eloquent productions of the time. At thirty-two he penned the old Constitution of New York, and in the same year was appointed Minister to Spain.

At the age of twenty-six, Thomas Jefferson was a leading member of the Colonial Legislature of Virginia. At thirty he was a member of the Virginia Convention, at thirty-two a member of Congress, and at thirty-three he drafted the Declaration of Independence.

Milton, at twenty, had written his finest miscellaneous poems. Lord Byron, at the age of twenty, published his celebrated satire upon the English bards; at twenty-four the two first cantos of Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. Indeed, all the vast poetic treasures of his genius were poured forth in their richest profusion, before he was thirty-four years old, and he died at thirty-seven.

Mozart, the German musician, completed all his noble compositions before he was thirty-four years old, and died at thirty-five.

Pope wrote many of his published poems by the time he was sixteen years old; at twenty his Essay on Criticism; at twenty-five his great work, the translation of the Iliad.

Sir Isaac Newton had mastered the highest elements of the mathematics and the analytical method of Des Cartes, before he was twenty, and discovered the new method of the calculus, of the telescope, the laws of gravitation, and the new planetary system. At thirty he occupied the mathematical chair at Cambridge.

Dr. Dwight's Conquest of Canaan was commenced at the age of sixteen, and was finished at the age of twenty-two. At the latter age he composed his celebrated dissertation on the history, eloquence, and poetry of the Bible, which was immediately published and republished in Europe.—Exchange.

Frissell-Dodd.

The marriage of Rev. Hollis Burke Frissell to Miss Julia Frissell, eldest daughter of Hon. Amzi Dodd, took place in the First Presbyterian Church, on Thursday afternoon, at 5.30 P. M.

The church was tastefully decorated with plants and flowers, and over the pulpit was hung a large monogram of white chrysanthemums containing the letters F and D.

Long before the doors were opened people began to arrive, and by five o'clock the church was nearly filled. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Frissell, father of the groom, and the introductory portion of the service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Ballantine.

The bridesmaids were Messrs. V. Dodd, a brother of the bride, Robert H. Dodd and Wm. M. Dodd, of New York, and Louis Richards, of Bloomfield.

The attendance of Bloomfielders was large, and there were also present many friends from out of town, including A. Frissell and family, of N. Y., Miss Leila Frissell, John D. Canfield, Esq., and Mrs. Silliman, from Morristown, Mr. Amzi Dodd, Jr., from Montana Territory, Ex-Gov. and Mrs. M. W. Ward, of Chambersburg, Vice-Chancellor and Mrs. Van Fleet, Hon. H. N. Congar and Miss Congar, Mr. and Mrs. L. Spencer Goble, of Newark, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Ackerman, of Plainfield, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, of Montclair, and Mr. Jacob P. Randolph, who, after all, belongs to Bloomfield.

After the marriage the immediate family of the bride and groom were entertained by Judge and Mrs. Dodd, at their residence on Broad Street.

Mr. Frissell is the chaplain and also a member of the faculty of the Hampton Institute, near Fortress Monroe, Va., and that place will be his home. The friends in Bloomfield will wish them both a long life and a useful one in the boundaries of the Old Dominion.

Our Water Supply.

An editor of THE CITIZEN extended his excursion the other morning as far as the East Orange water-works, for the purpose of seeing the water-works, and found them in the best possible condition, with a little energetic pump doing all that was required, and the big fellows standing side by side looking on.

The water in the well was escaping at the outlet, twenty feet above the bottom. It was as clear as crystal, and the bottom of the excavation was distinctly visible. In taste it is pure and pleasant, and the capacity is rated at 500,000 gallons a day. It strikes us that it would not be half a bad notion if there was some sort of an indicator, electric or otherwise, which should give the alarm in case of fire, and thus call for the extra pressure to be turned on. At present the only guide is the pressure gauge, and this must be closely watched if one is to know when a fire is in progress, and the plugs are shouting for more water. The telephone is relied upon to furnish this information, but telephones are fallible and occasionally vote the wrong ticket, especially when the wires get crossed. But a stream of water in a pipe is not apt to err. It merely remains to be said that the whole appearance of the machinery and equipment is such as to reflect the highest credit on those in charge. The large pumps are able to throw one million gallons into the pipes each twenty-four hours.

Fire in Brookdale.

The house occupied by George Baum, at Brookdale, was totally destroyed by fire on the 7th inst. at about 1.30 P. M. The fire had made such progress that the furniture of the lower floor could be saved. The contents of the upper rooms, the money saved by a very industrious, economical family the summer, the cellar full of clothing and other valuables, were all destroyed. Five young children were left in charge of the house, and it is supposed set fire to the building.

This property formerly belonged to the late Starr Parsons, and was lately purchased by Philip Baum. No insurance.

Honors to Whom Honor.

To The Bloomfield Citizens:

Our town officers are entitled to the special thanks of the residents in the west end of the town for correcting a long endured and pestiferous defect in the grade of Midland Avenue. This is only one, though probably the worst, of many similar defects in the parts of the town. The committee worked after profiles furnished by the engineer, Mr. Hughes, and soon finding that the cost would exceed the sum at their disposal for this similar work, they presented to complete it according to the design.

But the work now done is in the right direction and of great advantage. It will secure immunity from the street ponds and subsequent mud sloughs that hitherto followed every rainfall and made the walking there at night so perilous and at all times difficult. Thanks to the Committee!

The awakened spirit of improvement, and the diffusion of sanitary and esthetic intelligence, lead us to indulge the confident hope that our next town meeting will vote more liberal appropriations for "repairs and grading of streets," than which nothing can be more promotive of beauty, cleanliness, and good health.

It is worth noting that the beneficent effects of this in East Orange are so patent that the praise of that town is in everybody's mouth.

POCANTICO.

That man was a conscientious Christian who recently died in Somerville, and concerning whom this story is told: He had married a second time, and his wife, a loving and kind hearted woman, was greatly disturbed at his approaching dissolution. "I believe there is no chance of my recovery," he said. She shook her head and burst into tears. "The doctor says no, but there is one consolation, you are prepared, John." "Yes, I'm quite prepared," "Then we'll meet in heaven," she said. "Yes, I hope so; but as I was married before, we can only meet as friends." This was rather hard on the poor widow, if she doesn't happen to get married again.—Somerville Journal.
